Question: Due to the contract being set up as a lump sum price there is no quantity of material or time, is there a minimum to a maximum on the tonnage or hours being identified? Currently very difficult to put a lump sum number on the site. If the Region were to have a disaster such as a fire or flood and the Mackenzie site saw a massive increase on tonnage all the risk is on the contractor.

If a minimum to a maximum quantity either by hours or tonnage could be identified this would give direction with submission

Answer: This is a new operational setting and we suggest considering hourly rates with a total estimate based on approximately 30 percent of the total tonnage disposed of per year.

Any potential emergency occurring in the area of the Mackenzie facility would be assessed separately and should not be considered.
